What are China's new tariffs on lithium-ion cells & components?

Starting in 2025, new Chinese tariffs on imported lithium-ion cells and components—especially those used in energy storage systems—have reached levels as high as 104%, according to updated trade filings. This marks a significant increase compared to the average 20.8% rate recorded in 2024.

Which countries import lithium batteries?

The U.S. imports the majority of its lithium batteries from China, Singapore, Israel, Japan, and Canada. There are Section 301 tariffs on lithium battery imports from China. If you're importing lithium batteries from China, you'll need to factor in country specific tariffs when you budget for your goods.

What is a lithium tariff exemption?

Lithium tariff exemptions have emerged as a pivotal policy tool that allows certain lithium products to enter countries without the standard import duties that would otherwise apply to comparable goods. These exemptions reflect the mineral's growing importance to national economic and security interests worldwide.

What happens if you import lithium batteries from China?

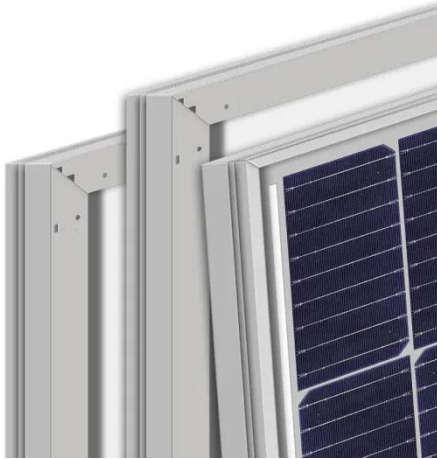

At minimum, such imports from China could result in a tariff exceeding 145% ad valorem. This tariff, whatever it may be when you import your lithium batteries, will be added on to Section 301 tariffs. Due to how expensive it is to import from China, you'll either need to budget accordingly or find a supplier in another country.

Will lithium tariffs jeopardize domestic manufacturing capabilities?

The United States, European Union, and several other jurisdictions have carved out specific exemptions for lithium imports, recognizing that punitive tariffs could jeopardize domestic manufacturing capabilities. Key policy developments include: The comparative approaches to lithium tariffs reveal important strategic differences:
